Wanted: students for jury duty on campus

By Dann Gire

Coles County Coroner Richard "Dick" Lynch announced Tuesday he was looking into the possibility of appointing Eastern students to inquest juries.

"Students can provide insight into situations and relate ideas about their fellow students," said Lynch. "Students can understand and ferret out reasons behind things that the average person cannot."

The coroner said that an inquest into the recent death of student Ward Haines will be conducted soon.

"It enough students register interest with me, we may hold the inquest on campus," said Lynch.

Lynch said that in cases involving the death of a student from Eastern, he would seriously "consider having an all-student inquest jury."

According to the Coroner's Handbook, printed by the Ill. State Department of Public Health, "In cases of apparent suicide, homicide, or accidental death, the coroner shall, and in other cases in his discretion he may, summon a jury of six persons."

Handbook statement

The handbook states that the six persons must be "of lawful age residing in the vicinity where the death occurred" in order to conduct an inquiry into cause of death.

The handbook also states "inquests may be continued from time to time as a coroner may deem necessary."

Lynch told the News that the county coroner is automatically called in for an investigation under any of five conditions:

1. If a body is found within the county limits
2. In cases of sudden or violent death
3. Any death which has obscure or mysterious circumstances
4. Death attributed in some way to addiction to alcohol or any other drug
5. Death where the deceased was not attended by a regular physician for more than 72 hours prior to death

Jury duties

Lynch said the duties of the inquest juries are only to "determine cause and manner of death."

"Most investigations are admittedly routine and ordinary," related Lynch. (See JURORS, page 2)

Fite selects Franklin over committee pick

By Beth Ahola

The head of the search committee for the Affirmative Action Program Director at Eastern said Tuesday that President Gilbert C. Fite ignored the committee's preference by selecting Jimmie Franklin as director.

Janet Norberg, head of the search committee, said, "We took our job seriously and worked over 50-60 hours on the committee," adding, "our work was unnecessary and the decision was, essentially, not a committee decision."

The three final recommendations that the committee sent to Fite included Margaret Soderberg, Political Science, Mauderie Saunders, Psychology, and Jimmie Franklin, History.

The committee noted its preference for Soderberg as director, on the basis of her "experience, position, and demonstrated interest in minorities," said Norberg.

Instead, Fite chose Franklin on the basis that "The committee's judgement was based on the fact that they wanted a woman." Fite went on to say that he felt the problems of possible discrimination on this campus could better be dealt with by a black.

The Affirmative Action Program headed by Franklin has been formed to establish, maintain, and monitor an effective program that will provide equal employment and promotion opportunities for minorities and women.

Although it has been a federal requirement that such a program exist on all campuses for the past two years, Eastern's program was held up due to workings with federal agencies and search committees until now, according to Fite.

Last spring Fite appointed a committee to find possible candidates for the director of the program. The committee included Norberg, Speech-Communications, chairwoman; B. T. Ridgeway, Zoology; Elmer Pullen, Financial Aids; Frances Pollard, Library Science; Marian Shuff, Education; Louis Grado, Education; Gene Beals, a Civil Service representative; and Student Body President Ellen Schanzle.

First drawing up a detailed statement of the suggested job description for the director, the committee then submitted the description to Fite, noted his suggestions for changes, and then advertised to the University faculty for candidates to the position.

Fite feels that the position of director of the program should be a full-time job, initially. But due to the fact that Franklin's appointment came after fall schedules and classes had already been set, the job will become full-time next semester.

The first responsibility of Franklin as director of the program will be to prepare a written statement as to the purpose, responsibilities, and course of action that the Affirmative Action Program will entail.

Local fans plan to see Cardinals in St. Louis

By Kathy Abell

Charleston residents will have their own night at the Cardinal-Pirate game in St. Louis, Friday evening, September 14.

According to Jerry Bennett, executive secretary of the Charleston area Chamber of Commerce, 130 tickets have been sold. "We still have 70 left for sale," said Bennett.

Bennett explained that the Chamber of Commerce originally ordered 200 tickets and when they were all sold, reordered an additional 200, which "we had a hard time getting."

Bennett expects that "three to four hundred residents wanting tickets will be turned away."

Residents in pre-show

There will be a 10-minute pre-show before the game featuring the Charleston residents, according to Bennett.

"The Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity will sing the national anthem to start off the game," said R. C. Snyder, fraternity adviser.

Check cashing

Although not all Eastern students have problems cashing checks, a banking seminar dealing with problems of check cashing will be held Wednesday at Carman Hall. Representatives from the three Charleston banks will be present to answer any questions concerning problems in check cashing procedures. See related story page 7. (News photo by Scott Weaver)

"Basically all the jury does is to listen to and weigh evidence.

"The presentation of evidence may include depositions, witnesses, police reports, and pictures. Once in a while, though we do get cases that are interesting and exciting."

"When someone dies, from any cause or circumstance, it's a good idea to have people on the jury who belong to the deceased's peer group," said Lynch.

Dorm air-conditioner repairs begun

Even though repair work on the broken air-conditioning unit at Thomas Hall began on Tuesday, hall residents may have to endure the heat for at least another week.

Donald Metcalf of the heating plant said Tuesday that work on the unit would probably continue for at least a week.

"I doubt seriously that they can get the unit fixed this week," he said. "There's a possibility that they might, though."

Metcalf explained that the repairs "involve a long drawn out procedure" because a new pumping system is being installed.

Requires welding

Installation of a new pump requires a good deal of welding, he said.

The hall was left without air-conditioning this summer when a pump in the system failed.

Originally the University thought that a new pump could not be installed for three months, Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams said Tuesday.

Williams said that when the pump went out, a new pump was ordered. At that time the university officials were told that there would be a three month wait until the replacement could be delivered.

Made new plans

Since officials had planned on a three month wait, Williams said, they scheduled the Carrier Air-Conditioning Company from Peoria, Ill. to install the pump around the expected delivery date.

In the meantime however, an unclaimed pump was found in

New York, Williams said, and sent to Eastern.

Instead of the three month wait that they had planned for, they had received the pump in two weeks, he said.

After the pump was delivered, the Peoria company was notified and requested to install the system.

Full schedule

But the Peoria company had a full schedule of jobs when Eastern re-applied for service. Vice President for Business Services, Harley Holt said. The Thomas Hall unit is a Carrier system, he said.

The company also gives preference to hospitals, churches and other similar organizations, Holt said.

But the company reworked their schedule after Eastern officials explained the situation in the hall, Williams said.

Cards

The singing of the national anthem will be followed by the throwing out of the first baseball.

"Mayor Bob Hickman will probably throw out the first baseball," said Bennett.

Shells sponsors bus

According to Bennett, Lyle Meyers, University Shell owner, is sponsoring a bus and buying tickets for the Jaycees.

"They (Jaycees) have done things for our community without reward. This 'gratis' night is sort of payment," explained Myers.

"The Jaycees will be recognized at the game," said Myers.

Myers also explained that the local news media will receive free tickets and transportation to the Charleston night Cardinal-Pirate game.

Provides publicity

Myers pointed out that this would provide "publicity for the city, give the Charleston night a 'big bang' and keep more cars off the roads that night."

Myers emphasized that the free tickets and transportation are not at all "business oriented".

"This is the first for this Charleston night," stated Bennett.

"The Chamber of Commerce Board will review the results of this affair and if they are satisfactory this will probably become an annual affair, said Bennett.

Residents interested in tickets may purchase them at the Charleston area Chamber of Commerce, 501 Jackson, for $3, according to Bennett.

Drops, adds to be probed

Eastern will analyze its present system of drops and adds, Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams said Tuesday.

Termining the mechanics of the fall semester add and drop process to date "very bad," Williams said that he would conduct an investigation of the system.

"We're going to analyze the entire system," Williams said.

Williams said that late registrants had taken many of the classes seats prior to the time the add lines opened.

This fall there were about 5,000 students who registered for classes at the beginning of the semester, he said. Usually there are no more than 500.

At senate elections

Speaker didn't like show

By Craig Sanders

"I don't like to see things like that happen," Bob Crossman newly elected Speaker of the Student Senate said Tuesday when asked what he thought about the walkout staged at last Thursday's Senate meeting during the election of the Speaker.

Crossman added that he was glad that Jim Price (another candidate) came back for the rest of the meeting and that he (Crossman) hopes to be able to work with Price and his supporters in getting things done in the Senate.

Crossman said that he hoped that Joe Dunn, one of his opponents in the deadlocked race that went seven ballots, would support him, but Crossman said he was not expecting Dunn to throw his support to him on that particular ballot.

Dunn said that he supported Crossman because he felt that Crossman would make a better Speaker than Price and that he wanted to break the deadlock that threatened to prolong the Senate meeting.

Stopped meeting

When asked whether he had advance knowledge that his supporters planned a walkout in his favor in order to stop the meeting by lack of quorum, Price told the News that he was aware of what was going on at the time but he did not know the motives of those taking part at the moment.

Price indicated that he would have joined the walkout had he known that the walking out would have prevented a quorum. Price noted that a quorum was 20 members and by his voting for himself on the seventh and deciding ballot, he had doomed the walkout as Crossman had received 19 votes.

Speculating on how Crossman will do as Speaker,

Price stated that he would have supported Joe Dunn had the walkout attempt been successful and the meeting forced to adjourn for another week, because Dunn has had more leadership experience in committees.

However, Price said that Crossman has served as Elections Chairman spring quarter and had done a good job. "I'm waiting to see how Crossman will do," Price said.

Price also stated that he feels that the Senate will be somewhat confused until Crossman is "broken in" as Speaker. He noted that the same thing had happened when he was elected Speaker last spring.

200 attend ceremony to begin center work

Over 200 persons attended the formal ground-breaking ceremony for the Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Service Center Sunday at 2 p.m.

The site for the center is located north of the Coles County Airport on Route 16 west of Charleston.

Mel Lockard, chairman of the Sarah Bush Lincoln fund drive, served as emcee for the affair, which lasted approximately 30 minutes.

George Tankey, chairman of the Area E-7 Hospital Board, took the honor of breaking ground first. Members of the board then followed Tankey by breaking ground.

The eleven members of the board were then given plaques with golden shovels commemorating the ceremony Sunday.

Gilbert C. Fite, Eastern president and guest at the ceremony, said that although the project was underway before he came to Eastern, he was "glad to see the project at this stage so soon."

Also present at the ground-breaking ceremony were Tom Merritt, state senator; Bill Cox district representative; and several doctors from the Charleston-Mattoon area.

Warbler staff meets tonight

The Warbler staff will have an organizational meeting Wednesday night, September 5, beginning at 6 p.m. according to Sharon Hicks, editor of the '73-'74 Warbler.

The meeting will take place in the Warbler workroom located in the basement of Pemberton Hall.

Miss Hicks stated that all interested people should attend this meeting because staff procedures will be explained. She also stated that it is not necessary to have experience to work on the Warbler.

Cool squirrel

Even though rumor may have it that this little creature originated in Old Main, the squirrel shown above was caught as he escaped the heat Tuesday underneath a nearby parked car.

Cable—our regards!

Amid budget cuts and program reductions we're glad to see that at least one student-oriented program has survived at Eastern.

Eastern's upcoming venture into the Cable TV field is probably the most progressive and constructive program that we've seen in a long time.

Programs similar to the television broadcast have been in existence for a long time at other universities—now Eastern has begun to offer its students interesting, relevant and challenging experience.

Students can go to almost any university—it seems that they would choose one that offered the extra plus in their specialization.

The creation of the broadcast is hopefully a step on the way to the formation of other such innovative ideas.

Not only will the weekly broadcasts expose Eastern to the non-university public, but the show will also give the student technicians invaluable experience in the television field.

We hope that the Speech-Communications Department will expand its plans for cable television broadcasting. Many other campus activities—as well as the local population—will benefit from such broadcasts.

If the expansion ever comes, and we welcome it, Eastern will be closer to becoming the actual "cultural center of eastern Illinois" that we've heard so much about.

Love, respect—learning together

"Black Power! Black Power! All power to the People! 'Right On!'"

Brothers and sisters come together. We talk all this black power, but do we preach it? Let's sit back for a moment and analyze the situation, or a portion of the situation...that portion that's happening here in Charlie Town.

Black power, black pride, what is it? We're wearing our Afro hairstyles, Afro garb, and when greeting another brother we give him the Black power handshake, but is this Black power?

The brothers and sisters that have been here for a couple of quarters are aware of their deficiencies in educational backgrounds as compared with their white peers. Thus, they know that Blacks must stick together to survive in Charlie Town and finally graduate from Eastern.

Where one brother excels in a particular subject he helps another brother who is less sufficient and visa-versa. This is a form of black power by working together to keep each other in school when many of the general requirements appear to be designed to flunk us out.

This brings up another aspect of the black power-pride issue. Who do you socialize with and why? I have observed, in the past couple of years, several blacks associating completely with whites. I'll go along with this. I don't knock anyone for what they do, especially if I don't know why they do it. I just wish someone would tell me.

I sit down and think "well maybe it's because they know there are cultural differences and want to share them." But then the more unreasonable, defiant part of me makes me think that the brothers and sisters are ashamed of blacks of being black, or perhaps that whites have more to offer them than their black brothers and sisters.

Black Ink

By Leslye Logan

This truly saddens me if these are their reasons for segregation. What's wrong with we blacks that people of our skin must stay away from us to enjoy themselves? If we're so black, why can't we get it together?

We've been brainwashed by the white man, that's why! How many of you know that there are brothers and sisters from the Motherland right here in Charlie Town, U.S.A.? If you do, you sure don't act like it.

Many blacks are prejudiced against Africans. You must think they're not human or something. The reason I can say this is because I was once prejudiced too. When I first came to Eastern, people (blacks) told me to "watch out for Africans..." and other weird stories about them, that as a freshman, I believed. Things are changing, thank God, and communications between the Black Americans and the Black Africans are getting alot better, but there is still plenty of room for change.

I wouldn't be surprised if our brothers from the Motherland were prejudiced against us either. The mass media has, for years, played up enough robberies, rape and riots involving blacks that if I never associated with blacks, and television and racist history books were my only source of education, I'd be scared off and prejudiced against blacks too.

We have got to get it together. Let's show some true black power and pride and unite. There are too few of us and too many whites down here to do it alone. It shouldn't be difficult, we're all human, believe it or not. Let's show each other some love and respect and learn about each other. Then we can learn about our great white fathers' culture, if we don't know about it already.

The Dragon's slain, now do something...

Four score and seven years ago great people did brave things for the love of liberty and freedom of the student body. They fought the good fight and if they did not slay the dragon, they caused him indeed to retire a year early. That crusade and attendant freedoms granted began in 1968, and the administrator in question, the university president, left the helm for good in 1970. What have they been doing lately?

It is now 1973. Student government is still with us. The Founding Fathers of our student government are not. Neither is their cause.

Major questions confronted the senate during a time when campuses nationwide awoke to political awareness. Extraordinary people of both senate factions slugged it out for the preminence of their convictions. They pulled dirty tricks, yelled at each other in meetings, made deals. But they also legislated.

Now the senators yell, pull dirty tricks and legislate little. Those senators, who do care, attend committee meetings, submit reports and negotiate with the administration. This they do in the background, not the battleground.

Jack Terndrup, student body president in 1970 said upon taking the oath of office that "there is nothing left to fight for." Maybe that is why the senators fight each other. Frankly, they have little else to do.

The new senators come in fresh as paint and full of enthusiasm. And what have they entered? A debating society, a group that takes years to process a Bill of Rights and constitution.

This constitution is usually challenged only by student senators. A measure of its drafting excellence and adherence to American theories of government is the clause dealing with student government officers. One must be a student to be elected—but not to serve in such an office.

Claiming any real significance for student government right now is about as meaningful as joining the historical society devoted to proving that Millard Fillmore actually did anything worthwhile. Their publication is called "Milestones with Millard." Maybe we could call ours "Stumbling with the Senate".

Consistency mark of Ken Jacobi

By Deb Newman

Senior Ken Jacobi has been running consistently in the top five category on the cross country team for the past three years. Last year Ken was running most frequently as fourth man on the team.

One of Jacobi's greatest accomplishments in cross country was when he was the first Panther to finish in the Notre Dame Invitational last fall.

Thirty universities participated in this tournament, including Bowling Green featuring Dave Wottle, 1972 Olympic 880 gold medalist, and a 49th place finish for Ken, a joyous victory.

Ken's running skill comes through combination of hard work, natural ability and desire.

"Practices are pretty rough and we usually have a hill work out once a week. We all get up and run the course together every morning at 6, and in the afternoon we practice by doing some hard running, hill routines and things."

Jacobi's attitude about running has made him a better athlete over the past two seasons.

"Last year was the first year I really looked forward to meets. I ran my best and I felt satisfied coming in fourth."

Jacobi explained that one reason for an unsuccessful 1971 season was due to physical complications involving colds and breathing problems.

"When I ran a couple miles my throat would fill up with phlegm and I would start wheezing. I had a hard time running because of it."

Cross country is a fall sport, but conditioning takes place during the summer months.

"To get in shape for fall, I run at least 500 miles in the summer. Some guys, the really great runners, run as much as 800-1000 miles."

Even though all of the men may train well over the summer, if they don't display a willingness to work together, seven great runners may suffer one defeat after another.

"Cross country is not an individual sport. All of the guys on the team must try to stay as close together and as far ahead of the other runners as possible. This means that you have to run your best and try to help or watch out for the other guys on the team a little too."

Team support helps.

"Even though it is hard for a large crowd to observe cross country meets, if a few people come and stand by the course and yell at the guys it helps a lot. Just knowing that someone is there who wants you to win."

According to Ken a great season can be expected from O'Brien and his Harriers.

"The team has a lot going for it this year. Even though there are five seniors on the team and we're all interested in turning out our best performances this season.

"The freshman have been working hard too and we're all just working together as a team the best we ever have. This is also Coach O'Brien's last year before he retires next spring and we want to put on a good show for him."

Ken Jacobi, senior from Chicago is one of the most vastly improved cross country runners. Here he's seen getting ready for the upcoming season. He holds the school record of 1:50.4 in the half mile. (News photo by Gary Dean)

IM department makes canoes available for student, faculty use

By Jeff Bonato

"Canoes are now available on campus for use by Eastern students and faculty members," announced Dr. Riordan, intramural director at Eastern.

The canoes, nine of them, may be utilized by student groups and individual students this semester until November 21.

Rules governing who may check out a canoe have been established to make canoeing safe, as well as fun.

To borrow a canoe a student must have swimming ability certified by Red Cross, YMCA, etc., or pass a swimming test given by the university.

Tests will be administered at the following times in Lantz pool: Wed., Sept. 5, 12-12:45 p.m.; Thurs, Sept. 6, 6-7 p.m.; Fri., Sept. 7, 12-12:45 p.m.; Mon. Sept. 10, 12-12:45 p.m. and Tues. Sept. 11, 11-12 a.m.

Additional test periods

Additional test periods are not scheduled, so any student who feels he might want to try canoeing sometime during the semester, should plan on taking the test during any of these posted times.

To take the test a student must sign up at the Lantz intramural office 24 hours before taking the test. When taking the test, besides a swimsuit, the student MUST bring along blue jeans, sneakers, and a sweatshirt.

Procedures for the actual checking out of a canoe have also been established.

The borrower must bring two valid I.D. cards to the intramural office. In addition, the borrower must certify that all users of the canoe have passed the recognized swimming test or equivalent, as explained above.

Programs safe as possible

Dr. Riordan explained, "There have been reports where students have died when a canoe tipped over on them. We want to make our program as safe as possible."

Individual students may reserve canoes two weeks in advance. Faculty and staff members may reserve a canoe one day in advance.

There is a security deposit of $20 which must be presented upon reception of a canoe. "This deposit", Riordan said, "will be returned if the canoe is brought back clean, and in proper working order."

If the canoes, or accessories, such as oars, are brought back dirty or damaged, then an appropriate fraction of the deposit will be withheld. In case the canoe suffers damage of over $20, then the borrower will be billed the difference by the intramural office.

Canoe checkout

For weekends, canoes can be checked out between 2 and 4: p.m. on Friday, and must be returned by 8 a.m. on Monday morning.

During the week, canoes can be checked out between 2 and 4 p.m., and must be returned by 8 a.m., the next day that school is in session.

IMs need soccer, grid refs experience not requirement

All students interested in becoming officials for mens' flag football and soccer should register now in the Intramurals Office, Room 144, in the Lantz Building, according to intramurals director Dr. William Riordan.

"We prefer to have guys who have experience as officials but if someone doesn't have experience, this should not discourage him from applying", said Riordan. "The two main qualifications are some knowledge of and an interest in the sport."

"Some guys use their experience here as a training ground for an officials job in later life," concluded Riordan.

The job pays $2.40 per game.

There will be a meeting for football officials at 7 p.m. in room 304 in Lantz Building on Thursday, Sept. 6. A meeting for soccer officials will be held in the same room on the same day at 8 p.m.

Recreation head sets fall bowling schedule

By Harry Sharp

Anyone interested in bowling and thinks they might want to play in a league is encouraged to sign up for league play anytime through Monday, September 10 at the University Union Recreation Area, according to Union Director of Arrangements, Phil Lindberg.

Following is a list of activities that will run throughout the semester:

Monday—Men's Faculty and Staff League

Tuesday—Coed Leagues

Wednesday—Student Men's Leagues

Thursday—Student Women's Leagues

Friday—Faculty and Staff Mixed Doubles

Saturday—Open Bowling

Sunday—Red Pin Bowling

Lindberg says that there are still openings in all leagues.

Mike Sylvester of the Recreation Area commented on the leagues.

"Anyone at all who is interested in bowling and enjoys playing and who believe that they can show up on a regular basis is encouraged to sign up.

"Having a low average is really no cause for concern due to the system of handicapping. We use an 80 per cent system. That is, if a bowler say, has a 100 average and is bowling against a bowler with a 200 average, the one with a 100 average will have 80 per cent of the difference of the averages added to his score, thus evening things up considerably.

"The first two weeks of play is when we will determine the averages for the year."

Saturdays are reserved for open bowling for the general public.

Sundays will also be open to the public with the added feature of Red Pin Bowling. If a bowler gets a red pin as the head pin and gets a strike on that roll he gets a free game.

Sunday nights will feature Moonlight Bowling, with the red pin features and the lights turned low.
